Does this website use cookies to keep track of my information?

Our website collects cookies related to user login and preferences.

What types of information does this website collect?

Whenever you visit our website, the following information is automatically logged:

- Information about the user's computer system, such as the web browser type, IP address, and operating system.
- Web pages visited, click stream data, and other navigation information.

If you decide to join Delaware HEAL using our online membership form, or use the Member's Only section, you may willingly provide:

- Traditional contact information such as mailing address, phone number, and fax number.
- Internet contact information (email address).

You may also decide to provide us with your email address or other contact information in order to request information from us, or to receive products or services.

Personal contact information is not given to us unless you choose to provide it.

Why is this website collecting the information?

The information that is automatically logged is collected for the following purposes:

- For website administration.
- To evaluate, review, or improve the website.
- To determine general habits, interests, or other characteristics of web site users, without attempting to identify specific individuals.

The information you voluntarily provide to us may be used for one or more of the following purposes:

- To facilitate membership in the Delaware Coalition to Promote Healthy Eating and Active Living.
- To provide products, information, or services requested.
- For a directory of members of the coalition.

Who will receive the information?

The information will not be shared with anybody outside our organization.
